1. Graduate School of Global Arts (Doctoral Program) Rules

Tokyo University of the Arts has established its doctoral program as a degree following the graduate school's master programs. The aim of this program is to utilize research and instruction into the relationship between art and society to provide practical training and development assistance to highly capable individuals who exhibit the ability to cultivate fine arts in novel ways.

Students will work under the art management, curation, or research areas of study. They will be asked to cultivate strong abilities in discernment, robust viewpoints, and comprehensive outlooks, all while continuing to move deeper into their specialist studies and research.

(1) Education Content and Registration Methods

1) Education Content

The doctoral programs are as shown in Table 1: Program Table.

2) Registration Method and Course Registration

Depending on the content of their research that academic year, doctoral program students will select from the courses established by the graduate school and are required for their studies. Decisions will be made in consultation with senior supervisors and/or assistant supervisors. (Credit cannot be acquired for department-established courses or various center-established courses.)

Furthermore, depending on research content, requests may be made for the establishment of different courses. Along with their research plan, students will report the courses that they have decided on to the registrar, doing so by the fixed date for the corresponding academic year. Course registration will be carried out via the educational affairs system (campus plan).

3) Research Plan

Doctoral program students will confer with supervisors as soon as possible after entering the university. They will draft a three-year research plan or 1st year research plan and will report this plan to the registrar (and through the registrar, the faculty council). In addition, they will submit a research progress report in February. From their second year on, the students will request a "progress report meeting" each year as early as possible. They will also draft a research plan for the corresponding academic year and will send this plan to the registrar. At the end of each year, the students will again submit a research progress report. Submission of a new research progress report will not, however, be necessary for the year following a successful thesis defense.

(2) Completion Conditions

The completion conditions will be as per Article 19 of the Tokyo University of the Arts Graduate School Regulations. However, with regards to credit acquisition, "10 or more credits" as stipulated in Article 19 of these same regulations will signify "acquisition of 10 or more credits from the following courses" as stipulated in Table 1: Program Table. "Thesis+" will signify a "doctoral thesis," in addition to "a progress report for practical activities relating to a doctoral thesis and/or research topics" in the art management and curation areas of study. In the research area of study, this will be signified as a "doctoral dissertation."

(3) Degree Conferment

A “Doctor of Philosophy” degree will be conferred to students who have completed their doctoral program. The degree conferment date will be March 31, or September 30.

Academic Degree Title: Japanese Title: 博士 (学術)

English Title: Doctor of Philosophy

(4) Thesis Defense

1) Submission of Doctoral Thesis Idea

Students wishing to undergo a thesis defense will submit a “Doctoral Thesis Idea” at a Doctoral Thesis Topic Idea presentation meeting carried out in the academic year prior to the submission of the thesis in question.

2) Students who wish to submit their doctoral thesis for qualification review to defend their thesis, will first undergo a review carried out via the Doctoral Thesis Submission Qualifications Review Decision Meeting. This is held in February of the academic year prior to the thesis submission (six months prior for a September completion). At this time, the students in question will submit their “Doctoral Thesis Idea” in a revised form, having been made the subject of a “Doctoral Thesis Topic Idea Presentation.” Students who have obtained six points based on the following table will be able to make a request for a qualification review.

	3 Points	2 Points	1 Point
Domestic and International Thesis &amp; Research Presentation	Presentation of thesis with peer review in an international academic journal	Presentation of thesis with peer review in an academic journal	International or domestic presentation of thesis (including academic society presentation and short essay publication)
Implemented Project	Inclusion of an international element (overseas guest invitation, overseas implementation, etc.)  Exhibitions, concerts, various art project types, workshops, and symposium planning and implementation (including reports, catalogs, and discussion)	Exhibitions, concerts, various art project types, workshops, and symposium plan drafting (including reports, catalogs, and discussion)	Media works such as magazines, books, and images, as well as the implementation of preliminary exhibitions, concerts, workshops, talks, etc. (including reports, catalogs, and discussion)

*Point allocations will be determined by a review board comprising of faculty members, serving as reviewers.

*Students will acquire one or more points via a thesis presentation.

*Students who do not implement a project will include more than one peer review - including a thesis presentation.

3) Submission of Doctoral Thesis Preliminary Review Documents

Students who successfully pass the Doctoral Thesis Submission Qualifications Review will submit the necessary documents for preliminary review to the registrar, in accordance with the set dates given below. Furthermore, preliminary application document submission will be recognized, even when the student in question is on a temporary leave of absence.

4) Thesis+ Submission

Students who have successfully passed the preliminary review must submit a Degree Qualification Review Request, their doctoral thesis, as well as the documents stipulated in Paragraph 1 of Article 4 of the Tokyo University of the Arts Graduate School of Global Arts (Doctoral Program). Furthermore, the doctoral thesis will be on A4-size paper, with both portrait and landscape orientation being accepted. Seminar	15 hours
Lab	30 hours

(2) Grades

Grades for each class subject in this school shall be represented by an evaluation of 秀 (Exemplary), 優 (Very Good), 良 (Good), 可 (Pass) or 不可 (Fail); a grade of Pass or higher is sufficient to pass.

To receive the stipulated numbers of credits for a class, a student must be in attendance for at least 2/3 of the total class sessions and pass an examination (at the end of the semester or academic year).

* The grading for theses shall follow the same standard, with a grade of Pass or higher being sufficient to pass.

Grades are announced at the end of each semester, so students should check on CampusPlan, to the side of the automatic door at the main entrance to the Senju Campus or by using the certificate dispenser in the Student Affairs Office on the Ueno Campus.

Graduates shall be provided with a transcript of their grades along with their diploma at the graduation ceremony (March 25 each year).

(3) Full-year Course Credit Partition System

(May 11, 2017 - Faculty Council Decision)

(September 26, 2018 - Faculty Council Revision)

Limited to cases that fulfill the following conditions: when the concerned student is in the middle of a temporary leave of absence taken in the middle of the academic year, as a special case, half-term credits (half of the original number of credits) will be recognized; even for full-year courses.

[1] Cases where credit partition will be recognized:

- a) When the corresponding student is enrolled in a program at a university or graduate university, or a program at another institution recognized to correspond to either of these, via a formal school system in an overseas country.
- b. Cases with a temporary absence due to child-rearing, nursing care, or spousal accompaniment (with the target students here being those to whom various staff leave regulations apply.)
- c. Other cases that the Dean has accepted as valid, educationally-speaking.

[2] Time periods for commencement of and return from a temporary leave of absence:

The time period in which the amount of attendance required for a half-term course can be fully met.

[3] When a performance evaluation equivalent to passing the previous term has been obtained from the teaching staff in charge of the relevant course.

[4] Documents required when submitting a temporary absence application:

- a. In cases corresponding to [1] a: Certificate issued by accepting institution. Documentation that clearly states the study abroad term, qualifications, etc.
- b. Full-year course credit partition application accompanying temporary absence.

[5] Documents required when submitting application for return from a leave of absence:

- a. In cases corresponding to [1] a: Material proving enrollment in corresponding educational institution: Certificate of student status, academic transcript, student ID card, student record, course registration slip (materials with academic advisor attendance signature), etc. Depending on the case at hand, course tuition payment evidence may also be acceptable. It is not necessary to have obtained a degree, or to have acquired qualifications as having graduated or completed the course).
  - Original documents will be returned after a copy is made by the registrar.
- b. Full-year course credit partition application accompanying return from a leave of absence.

[6] Points of note after returning from a leave of absence:

In instances where the above-mentioned course is one required for degree completion, a half-term of the same course must be taken during the following term. In cases where said course has not been established, however, a half-term of a course corresponding to this must instead be taken.

*Applications are to be conducted through the registrar

○ Regarding curator qualifications

Curators are positioned in museums, art galleries, etc., as individuals who conduct specialist professional duties relating to material collection, examination, research, safekeeping, exhibition, educational and popularization activities, etc., based on the Museum Law.

In order to obtain the qualifications to become a curator, a student must hold a Bachelor's degree, and must acquire museology-related credits as stipulated in the Ordinance for Enforcement of the Museum Law.

At Tokyo University of the Arts, courses are offered for curator qualification acquisition as per the content of the table above. Having carefully read through the syllabus and gained a thorough understanding of its content, students wishing to obtain curator qualifications will systematically take courses from their first year on, giving consideration to the matter of compatibility with their individual master's degree areas of study.

Furthermore, in recent years it was found that curator employment examinations are extremely difficult to pass. To acquire these qualifications, students need to be proactive in their education, in order to deepen their knowledge, capabilities, and experience in individual specialist fields.

○ Program Table

1. Each of the required courses shown on the table must be taken by the student.
2. It would be preferable to undergo art museum practical training first after having obtained the eight required course credits. Registration will also be possible for students who expect to acquire all of the said credits within the same academic year as the art museum practical training in question.
3. Museum Management Theory, Museum Education Theory, and Art Museum Practical Training will each be carried out via intensive courses. (It would be preferable to take Museum Management Theory and Museum Education Theory during the first year, as there are some cases where time conflicts occur for these courses.)
4. Students will acquire eight or more credits via elective courses established by Tokyo University of the Arts.
5. Other museology program (curator qualifications) courses are not included in the credits required for the completion of the Graduate School of Global Arts.
6. Students who possess a university degree and have acquired the prescribed credits will be presented with curator qualification credentials. (Students are asked to please bear in mind that these curator qualification credentials will not be issued without an application to do so. (The application acceptance procedure will be conducted in December of the year of completion. Notifications regarding the process, etc., will be made via bulletin.))
7. As the Museology Curator Program places heavy importance on working with fine arts museums and art museum content, as well as other fine arts materials, only a limited number of the required courses taken at another university will be acknowledged by Tokyo University of the Arts (See below).

- Museology program (curator qualification) courses taken at other universities, etc.
Students who have taken museology program courses at another university, and have then entered into the graduate program at Tokyo University of the Arts with the wish to acquire curator qualifications, will receive credit for the following courses only:

• Declarable Courses: (Please refer to the Museology Curator Program Table)
Lifelong Learning Theory, Introduction to Museums, Museum Management Theory, Museum Information & Media Theory, Museum Education Theory

(Such cases will not lead to acknowledgement and certification per se, but in terms of registering for courses or applying for curator qualification conferment, if proof is verified that the student in question has acquired credits at their home university, they will not need to repeat the same course at Tokyo University of the Arts. As shown in the remarks section at the bottom of the Program Table, students from other universities who wish to obtain curator qualifications from Tokyo University of the Arts must take all of the eight elective course credits at this university.)
